Alpha Phi Quarterly Editorial Policy

The purpose of the Alpha Phi Quarterly and its content is to provide information and services to the membership of the Alpha Phi Fraternity, in keeping with the Fraternity's status as a 501(c)(7) tax-exempt private membership club. The magazine is devoted to highlighting its members and matters of fraternal and college interest. The views expressed in the articles published in the Quarterly are those of the authors and their contributors, and do not necessarily represent the opinions of Alpha Phi Fraternity, its officers or staff.

All persons interested in submitting materials for publication in the Alpha Phi Quarterly are encouraged to send them to the editor at the Executive Office. The editor reserves the right to accept, deny or edit any materials submitted. Unless otherwise requested, all photos sent to the magazine will become the property of Alpha Phi International and will not be returned.

Articles may be sent by mail, fax, e-mail or on a PC disk. Please send your information to the editor by the deadlines indicated on this page. Materials received after these deadlines will be considered for the following issue.

Please direct any submission questions or inquiries regarding publication advertising to the editor at 847.316.8920, or quarterly@alphaphi.org.

The Alpha Phi Quarterly is published winter, spring, summer and fall. Subscription price for non-members is $25 per year. Contact the Quarterly for information about pricing of individual issues. Send change of address or announcements to Alpha Phi Executive Office, 1930 Sherman Ave., Evanston, IL 60201. Periodical rate postage paid at Evanston, IL, and at additional mailing offices. (ISSN: USPS 014680) Postmaster: Please send address changes to Alpha Phi, 1930 Sherman Ave., Evanston, IL 60201. Printed in the USA.

It is an honor to welcome you to this issue of the Quarterly – a look back at 50 years of Sharing Our Hearts, as well as a glimpse into the future – because you are the heart of the Alpha Phi Foundation, and through the gift of your time, talents and treasures you touch the hearts of thousands of women and families every year.

As women, we support projects in which we can create, change, connect, collaborate and commit as volunteers. We do this in our academic, religious and home communities to make a better world. And we do this in our collegiate and alumnae lives because Alpha Phi has touched our hearts along the way.

For 50 years the Alpha Phi Foundation's mission has been to touch hearts too, as well as to fund programs that provide leadership and educational opportunities, encourage and recognize superior scholarship, support women's cardiac health, educate women about the value of philanthropy and assist members in need. It is your creativity, collaboration and commitment – as well as your contributions – that support and enhance our tradition of sharing.

On behalf of the Foundation board and staff, I want to personally thank you for sharing your hearts as:

- donors, financially supporting the Foundation and our programs, scholarships and grants that benefit other sisters and our communities,
- volunteers, giving valuable time and energy to Foundation activities,
- members of the 50th Anniversary Steering Committee, creating a great celebration, and
- board and staff members of both the Fraternity and Foundation, keeping Alpha Phi's heart beating strong.

Enjoy this issue of the Quarterly – a reflection of the good work we have accomplished together and a look at the opportunities that lie ahead of us. Then take a moment to thank a sister who has touched your heart through the years or a sister whose heart needs your touch today through an honor or memorial gift to the Foundation.

In June, please join me at Convention 2006 to celebrate Alpha Phi Foundation's 50th anniversary. It will be one party you won't want to miss!

Once again, thank you, my Alpha Phi sisters, for touching the hearts of women everywhere by sharing yours.

Sincerely,

Susan Weiskittle Barrick

The Badge That Binds Us

34 Years in the Making, Our Badge Turns 100

By Margaret Knights Hultsch (BN-Duke, P-Ohio State, B-Northwestern and O-Missouri)

Designed by one of the first Syracuse (A) members

The National Panhellenic Conference inaugurated International Badge Day in 1997, on which all 3.7 million initiated sorority women are urged to wear their badges – a splendid practice which we hope catches on. One hundred and more years ago there wouldn't have been the need for such an exhortation, though, as perpetual pin wearing – by both collegiate and alumnae members – was the norm, often with charming consequences.

The Alpha Phi Quarterly of November 1890 carries this touching account: “A few weeks ago,” says the writer (who was serving as a Methodist missionary to Japan), “we entertained a party of newly-arrived missionaries who were going to China. I went to the dinner weary and worn with my work and feeling no particular interest in the strangers. As we were introduced, I caught sight of a badge at the throat of one of the young ladies. Yes! It was an Alpha Phi pin with a Beta guard. My own badge caught her eye, and as our hands met in the good old grip, our hearts beat ‘heart to heart,’ and we realized here, in far away Japan, the blessings of Alpha Phi.”

Alpha Phi was the first women's fraternity to use Greek letters as its badge*, but in the beginning the exact design of the pin did not matter. Each member envisioned the pin of her dreams and had it made by her jeweler. Most of these little badges were set with pearls, diamonds, rubies, garnets and turquoises, as enthusiastic members felt nothing was too good for Alpha Phi, and each wanted the most beautiful badge she could afford.

Most, if not all, of these 19th century badges had the “Phi” lying on its side – the so-called Lazy Phi badge. This design might be attributed merely to artistry. Recent research in old Quarterlies and Convention minutes, however, suggests a less capricious intent. At the time of the founding of our Alpha Phi, in September 1872, there was another Alpha Phi already in existence, a men's secondary school fraternity founded in Hamilton, N.Y., in 1870. Our Lazy Phi design is said by some early members to have been chiefly a device to distinguish our monogram badge from theirs.

Barnard (M) 1906

Interest gradually grew in developing a standardized badge. But what a touchy issue this was! At the 1884 Convention, a committee was formed to “plan for a Society emblem.” Nothing came of it. In 1885 another such committee was formed. And so it went for 22 years with Convention delegates wrangling over such issues as these: What size should the pin be? Should the “Phi” be upright or horizontal? Should it be chased or plain? Should there be stones? Which stones? Ruby? Crown set?

Should there be a standardized badge at all? Those in favor believed that the pin should be distinctively a badge, not a personalized item of jewelry. Those opposed wailed that this “takes away all the delightful sentiment connected with the pin.”

The presiding officer of the 1894 Convention tried to maintain the composure of delegates by declaring, “We are no longer school girls, and this matter should be looked at in a sensible, business-like way.”

The Quarterly editor intoned in the November 1894 issue: “The foundation, principles and watchwords of the Fraternity are the same for each chapter – why should the pins not be the same?”

By 1898 a new consideration had arisen, that of cost and the varying pocketbooks of the members. “Unifying the size and to a certain extent the price of the pin takes away all invidious distinctions and makes it purely a bond of unity – a symbol for a beautiful thought – representing in its uniform simplicity the smallest possible sum in every case,” writes one member in the Quarterly.

Simplicity and minimal expense became bigger and bigger factors in the debate. “The most beautiful pin we know is one of the old style – plain Greek letters of medium size without jewels,” says a writer in the November 1901 Quarterly. “It does not represent money value; every sister can afford to own one; it is the simple testimony that the wearer is of that band whose motto reads ‘Union hand in hand.’”

Members became more and more serious regarding the meaning of the badge, and its frivolous use was discountenanced. “When we use it to fasten our collar or to take the place of ... a hair pin, we pervert its use,” says the Quarterly in August 1902. And in February of 1904, a writer decries a meaningful badge disguised by incongruous decoration with jewels and compares it to the prevailing custom regarding wedding rings. “We do not wear our diamonds on our wedding bands,” she says. “True elegance and true simplicity forbid.”

Syracuse (A) 1908

Momentum for reverence of the badge grew, and at the 1904 Convention President Genevra Gwynn Wiley (A-Syracuse) asked “that we use our Fraternity pin not as a brooch nor as a necktie fastener, but as a badge only, worn on the left side, ‘nearest the heart.’” Though it is not officially prescribed by the Fraternity, this is the practice which we almost universally follow today.

The Convention of 1906 finally approved the general specifications for a uniform badge – a plain, unjeweled monogram bearing the three-letter secret insignia in black. A white-jeweled badge was approved for dress. The monogram was to be of “true Greek,” not fanciful, letters. In 1908 several pins were exhibited at Convention, and the standard design we use today was adopted. A.H. Fetting of Baltimore, Weld & Sons of Minneapolis and Shreve & Company of San Francisco were chosen as official jewelers. Ironically, the design adopted was virtually identical to one of the Alpha Phi men’s fraternity badges from which we had originally tried to differentiate ourselves.

And so the badge controversy rested – until Convention 1946, when collegians clamored for permission to wear a white-jeweled badge during the day, as alumnae did, as well as for evening dress. Permission was granted. Former International Officer Ruth Himmelman Wright (Σ-Washington), who attended that Convention recalls, “Man alive! Did we collegians think we’d achieved a Mammoth Victory.”

Then in the late 1950s International Director of Alumnae Edith Huey Shelton (B-Northwestern), a commanding figure in the Fraternity at that time, flouting 50 years of Fraternity tradition, placed her badge on a bangle bracelet and wore it as – jewelry. This practice caught on as it gave alumnae, especially, a way to display their badges when they had little other motivation to do so. Present Fraternity policy provides that badges may be converted into rings or pendants but may not otherwise be altered.

Then in 1972, dismayed by the way the badge had virtually dropped from sight in the anti-fraternity 1960s, International President Betty

Mullins Jones (Γ-DePauw) pushed the envelope even further with a reminder memo she sent to the Fraternity saying, in effect, that members were free to wear their badges any way they liked – Just Wear Them! This liberality did not catch on, however, and today the badge is seldom seen anywhere other than over the heart.

We have moved from the years up through the 1950s when a new initiate would wear her badge on her pajamas and a collegian who had forgotten to put on her pin that morning would run back to the house between classes to retrieve it, to today when badges are worn only on special occasions. Practices vary. In some chapters members dress up and wear the badge all day the day of chapter meeting. A few other chapters specify one day each week for the wearing of the badge. Some wear them to chapter meetings, ceremonies and preference parties only.

Through modern times members have always been captivated by the old style Lazy Phi badge when one appears, some wishing they could acquire a Lazy Phi for their own. At Convention in the 1960s, members were given the opportunity to register their opinions on reviving the Lazy Phi badge. Collegians, especially, preferred to reserve this style as honor badges for International officers, certain other officials, chapter presidents and International awardees, which remains the case today.

We receive a badge when we are initiated as Alpha Phis, and it is ours to wear for our lifetime (so long as we do not resign or become suspended or terminated), but the final ownership remains with the Fraternity. The badge of a deceased member may be kept by her family, given to her original chapter or to another Alpha Phi or returned to the Fraternity.

There have emerged unscrupulous individuals who collect fraternity jewelry as a hobby – non-members to whom our badge as a symbol means nothing. They can be very rude about their “right” to own our emblem. Guard that your badge never falls into their hands!

1898 design

**As things have developed, roughly speaking, monogram pins characterize women’s fraternities founded in the Eastern United States; emblem badges characterize those founded in the South or Midwest.*

Congratulations 25-, 50- and 75-Year Sisters!

Alpha Phi salutes the following women who celebrate a significant anniversary of sisterhood during 2005. We recognize these members of Alpha Phi for 25 (initiated in 1980), 50 (initiated in 1955) and 75 years (initiated in 1930) of membership. Congratulations also goes to 10-year sisters (initiated in 1995).

25-Year Members

Looking for a way to celebrate your 25-year anniversary of sisterhood? Would you like to honor an alumna's 25-year anniversary with a recognition pin and/or certificate? To order, visit www.alphaphi.org, e-mail alumnae@alphaphi.org or call 847.316.8940.

Editor's Note: San Jose State (BΨ) is not in the 25-year member list because initiation practices of the time included extended pledging periods. Other chapters may not be listed because they did not exist at the time (e.g., chapters were closed or not yet established).

ANNIVERSARY RECOGNITION PINS

These women are now eligible to purchase a special anniversary pin from the Executive Office to mark this wonderful occasion.

The sterling silver 25-year pin in the shape of the Big Dipper is fashioned with one sapphire at each of the seven joints (cost: $35).

The 50-year pin, a silver circle with four red stones, is created so your original badge can be placed inside the circle (cost: $30).

The 75-year pin, a brilliant diamond-shaped golden pin with clear stones at each of the points, also allows you to place your original badge inside the pin (cost: $30).

To order, please e-mail alumnae@alphaphi.org or call 847.316.8940. Please add $5 shipping & handling fees to each pin order. 25-, 50- and 75-year member certificates are free with each pin order. Certificates may be ordered individually for $10 each, plus $5 shipping & handling.
